

I think the color scheme would be really calming and nice to look at, I think a white background with the orange, purple, and teal to highlight information and block out different sections will look really nice.

I want some fonts to be more scribbly and fun for the headings. I would like to put some flower icons on the side and I think it will give it a more fun and playful feel. I think the other text, especially the newsreader will be easy to read and match the more delicate feel of the site.
